Our families come from all over the world, leaving their families and their country behind for a new life. It's a daunting time getting accustomed to a new place, a different way of living and getting children settled. A lot of the time not being able to speak English and having to make new friends.

This week, we saw parents display an act of kindness to one of our new families, who were distressed at hearing a noisy plane go overhead. This is something we take for granted but it meant something very different to them.

So to those parents I say thank you. I am sure it meant a lot to the family and they will remember your embrace and kindness.

There are lots of free things going on during half term. Why not visit The National Archives in Kew, who are hosting some family days during half term. For more information please use the links below.
